

ABSTRACT

The present invention aims to identify the molecule involved in mechanical allodynia, and to develop and provide a pharmaceutical composition to target this molecule such that the composition is effective in the treatment of mechanical allodynia. The present invention also aims to provide a screening method for compounds for use in such pharmaceutical compositions, a method of determining mechanical allodynia, and a treatment method of mechanical allodynia.

10